A NOTE FROM RABBI HOLTZ

VETERANS DAY

With November coming up, many people are perhaps focused on the upcoming Election Day. Elections, of course, matter. The decisions and leadership of our elected officials matter. Their policies and examples will impact people all over the world.

A little more than a week later, though, is Veterans Day. Veterans Day is a reminder that many more people than just officeholders have contributed to our country. We specifically remember those who served in our Armed Forces for their courage and sacrifices – they matter too.

The words that Churchill said of the Royal Air Force during World War II, “Never was so much owed by so many to so few,” could apply to many of our own heroes who fought and gave so much.

Thinking of our veterans and those still serving is also an invitation to think of the ways that many, many people serve our country. People give in all sorts of ways. For some, they choose a profession that specifically serves the community, and likely doesn’t pay well in return. We think of the many firefighters, paramedics, police officers, teachers, social workers, and so on who sign up, often for little pay, because they want to give back and make better.

While we can and should be thankful to them, that is not the only way to contribute. Each of us can do a bit to make the lives of the people around us a little bit better. That might mean volunteering or contributing, it might mean peacefully protesting for a worthwhile cause, or it might mean remembering to treat others the way we wish to be treated.

The point is, as we are concerned about the well-being of our community and country, we can both acknowledge the importance of the roles that others play, while at the same time assuming a small bit of responsibility ourselves.

As Rabbi Tarfon said almost 2,000 years ago, “It is not up to you to do everything yourself, but you are not free to do nothing.”

This November, with Election Day and Veterans Day, we are no doubt focused on how others impact our country. However, these days can also be reminders to us that we too can contribute – perhaps not in the same way or in as large a way, but in little, still meaningful ways.

News from the TKC President

In a few days, in the midst of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, Americans will elect a president, and vice president, 435-members of the House of Representatives, 35 Senators (including both from Georgia), 11 governors, and 86 state legislative chambers in 44 states. Like paying taxes, serving on juries, and registering for the draft, voting is a civic duty critical to any democracy. Unlike other civic duties, however, voting in the United States is optional. Whatever the stakes, no law compels Americans to vote. So how should being Jewish shape your choice of whether or not to vote?

I believe that one of the greatest modern-day mitzvahs is voting. A mitzvah is something we are obligated to do. While none of us are required by law to vote, I believe we should feel obligated by our Jewish values. Voting is our opportunity to elect leaders who will help us to build the world that we pray about, learn about, and dream about in our Jewish tradition. Without voting, we give up our responsibility to help bring about this world.

Voting is a very Jewish thing. Tikkun Olam – the concept of repairing the world – can be practiced by anyone, anywhere, from doing an everyday mitzvah at home to encouraging policy change on an international scale. One of the ways to work on repairing the world, in order to create the kind of world you want to see, is to vote and be involved in your community, so that you are effecting change.

Judaism teaches us that voting is not just a civic duty. In fact, throughout Jewish history, many of our rabbis and sages have framed voting as a Jewish imperative. We are taught to choose life. Choosing life is a positive action, reminding us that we have to make choices to create the world we want to live in. Voting, in a democratic society, is such an example of making a choice.

It is via government that we Jews fulfill our civic duty to the communities where we live – not only by paying taxes, but also through public service and especially by voting. Government's whole agenda – public health and safety, social policy, criminal justice, national security, environmental protection, and much more – are all concerns of Jewish voters. That is the Jewish commitment to our nation, our traditions, and our values – whatever our personal politics and partisanship may be.

Every election is important, and Judaism's value of collective action mandates Jews to pitch in. So if you have not already cast your vote early or mailed in your absentee ballot, please go to your assigned precinct this Tuesday (November 3) and vote! It is your duty as a Jew!

I am thrilled to report that this year's High Holy Day Appeal was a fantastic success!

As of the October 18th deadline, we already received donations in excess of $20,000, meaning we have maximized the anonymous matching $20,000 challenge made by an incredibly generous anonymous TKC member. So in this year like no other, with no High Holy Day ticket sales or other traditional sources of holiday revenues, we are now assured that this year's Appeal generated over $40,000 in much needed donations, thanks to the incredible generosity of at least 65 individual donors combined with the wonderful matching grant!

In addition, the High Holy Day cardboard cutouts fundraiser generated additional net funds in excess of $2,900, and there were also other High Holy Day donations made to the Rabbi's Discretionary Fund.

So if you are one of these many donors to these campaigns, THANK YOU! Your generosity will help sustain Temple Kehillat Chaim during these difficult times, as we continue to lift the spirit, nurture the soul, and ensure the vibrancy of our kehillah in the years to come.

Here is some more exciting news! We will soon be launching a brand-new Temple Kehillat Chaim website, which has been in development over the last year. This important initiative has been spearheaded by my predecessor, Jonathan Young, our Immediate Past President. The new website has been artfully created by an incredibly generous TKC member, Jeff Pedowitz, and his talented web development team at The Pedowitz Group. This website will offer us a new look and feel, greatly enhanced functionality, and many other new features. So stay tuned!

Brotherhood News

Hello Gentlemen,

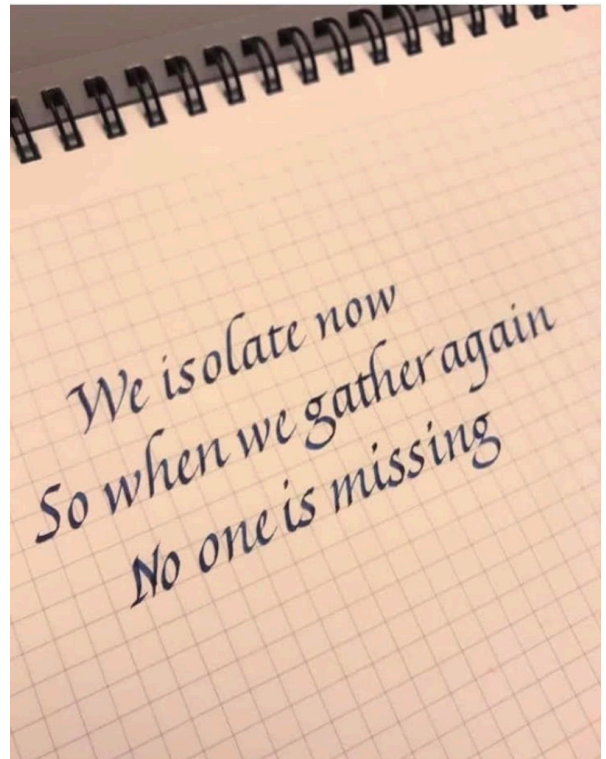

Hope all of you are doing well during these trying times. It's that time a year to renew your membership to Brotherhood.

Dues are 36 dollars and checks can be made to TKC Brotherhood and mailed or left at the office. If you could just shoot a quick email to me to me telling me you renewed so I can update our master list.

We are always looking for new members and if you want information please contact Me or Dan Eifert at tkcbrotherhood@gmail.com

We are planning to gather in small group in the near future just to hang out and schmooze. More info will be forthcoming. Thank you all and hope you had a Happy New Year!!

Jeff Seltzer and Dan Eifert

Sisterhood News

Hello Ladies! I hope everyone is hanging in there! The Sisterhood had a outdoor dinner in Roswell in September. It was great to see everyone and it was fun!

We collected cash and food donations for Debbie Lutchen's school charity called "Backpack Buddies" The organization helps provide meals for underprivileged school children. If you would like to get more information about this worthwhile charity, please contact Debbie Lutchen.

We had our first "Sisterhood Catch Up Chat" on Zoom on October 21st. It was great to see everyone who logged on. Please join us at the next one on November 18th at 7:30 pm. It's a great way to stay connected. Please do not be shy!

We are going to make plans to go to dinner again at an outdoor restaurant in November. Please email me if you want to join us. Please reach out if you have any questions or if you would like to get involved in the Sisterhood. We would love to have you!

Judy Singer and Debbie Lutchen

News from the Mitzner Family Religious School

We've been staying busy at the Mitzner Family Religious School! We had a great turnout at the event on October 4th to decorate our sukkah. Thank you to the families who came by!

We returned to online religious school in October and will remain online through December. It's been fun and engaging and our teachers have been amazing at providing great content and education while being virtual.

We will have our next in-person Learning Day on November 15 where we'll make Family Time Capsules. A supply list will be provided for families who want to do it on their own at another time! During the Judaics timeslot that day, there will be a fun art project for all grades to do if you cannot attend in person. This art project will then help us build our Chanukkah fundraiser so please have your child participate.

For those who come to our in-person day on November 15, please remember the following safety protocols, including:

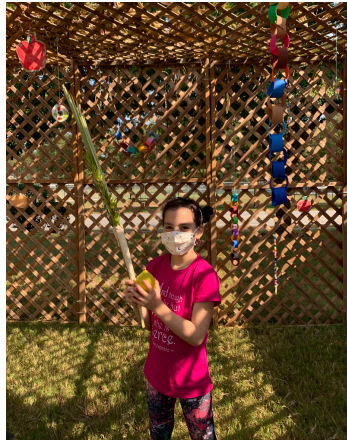

- We will be taking temperatures and providing hand sanitizer upon arrival.
- All attendees MUST wear masks. If you do not feel comfortable wearing a mask the entire time, please do not sign up to attend.
- Families MUST remain socially distant from other families during your time at the event.
- We will sanitize all materials and work areas between shifts/families.
- Please do not bring food to this event.
- We will be limiting entrance into the building so please plan to use the restroom before you arrive.

Our Chanukkah fundraiser is coming together! We will be hosting an online Chanukkah Cabaret – if you want to participate with a song, dance, story, or other performance, let Rabbi Holtz know! Throughout the cabaret we'll be highlighting the art projects created during Judaics. Families can “bid” on these projects and donate to the school. We'll also be turning all of the art into a calendar that families can purchase as a fundraiser too.

Be on the lookout for more information on both of these great fundraisers!!

Stay safe and well!!

Have a child or children ages 0-4? Join us virtually for Little Mensches, Temple Kehillat Chaim's own baby and toddler play group, on November 15th at 11am.

There will be singing, stories, crafts, fun activities, and noshing, as we start to learn about the Jewish Holidays. This group welcomes all, including non-members, so feel free to invite your friends!

Email Amy Bryson at tkclittlemensches@gmail.com to RSVP and for more information.
Hope to see you and your Little Mensch there!

KLUB345

Mark your calendars for our next Klub345 event on Sunday, November 8 at 1:00pm.

We look forward to seeing our old friends and making new ones. RSVP to klub345@gmail.com for further information if your child will be attending.

Also, if you have not done so, please complete the membership forms found on our website under the "Connect" tab. Payment can be made online or by check.

We can't wait to see you!

College Outreach

It's not too late to include your college student in the program. We are prepping to send the students their boxes for Hanukkah so get us those names, addresses and emails before Thanksgiving.

If your student will be changing their address for the Spring semester, please send us the updated information: TKCCollegekids@gmail.com.

We are looking for help for the Spring mailings. If you are interested in helping out, please contact the office.

RAFTY

ALISSA GLATTER
BAKES APPLE
BROWN BETTY

Hello TKC! I'm Danielle Faulhaber, this year's Religious and Cultural Vice President for RAFTY. My job as RCVP is to work with our Programming Vice President, Ally Feinstein, to plan and run engaging religious services for our RAFTY participants. This year, my goal is to not only engage people over the virtual platform but to excite participants about Judaism. By working hand-in-hand with Ally, we were able to plan and run successful High Holy Day services.

This year for our services, RAFTY led a baking service where we made Apple Brown Betty to lead us into a sweet new year and a meditation service where we reflected on this past year and how we can set realistic goals for the future. We had great participation and engagement at both services, and I'm looking forward to planning more for my peers as the year goes on.

Join JYG Saturday November 14th at 7:30 for Havdalah and a virtual game night! The cost of the event is free! A cell phone and a computer are both required for this event. Please check your emails for more information. We hope to see you there!!
