A Note From the Rabbi

Jason Holtz

Love the Stranger

Antisemitism reared its ugly head again last month, first at Pope High School and then at Lassiter High School when Nazi imagery appeared on their walls. Even more disconcerting was that the school leadership failed to recognize and name it for what it was, antisemitism. It's hard to see this as an isolated incident. Sadly, minority groups, including minority faiths, are often targeted as a result of either ignorance, fear, or hatred. In response to that reality, the Anti-Defamation League formerly provided Cobb County Schools with educational resources called "No Place for Hate." Recently, though, the program was discontinued in response to a resolution from the school board banning critical race theory in schools. The problem with removing educational resources means that both students and even adults are unprepared or unable to address issues around diversity, making incidents such as what happened recently more likely and unsurprising.

At recent school board meetings, Jewish students and parents, as well as communal leaders, spoke to problems Jewish students are facing at school. Following the school board meetings, there was a smaller group meeting with representatives of the Jewish community. Some progress has been made. First, Georgia's State Commission on the Holocaust will provide professional development to staff in the schools. The school board will arrange for substitute teachers to cover classes to enable teacher attendance. Second, while attendance rules have changed during the pandemic, the school board agreed that Jewish (and other minority faith) students will no longer be penalized in any way for absences because of religious holidays. Specifically, this means Jewish students will still be eligible for perfect attendance awards (if the awards return) should a Jewish student be absent for a Jewish holiday. Holiday absences will not be marked "excused" or "unexcused," but simply, "holiday." Third, we expect continuing attention to the issue as time goes on.

To me, this is just the latest example of something that happens to a greater or lesser extent all the time. One person or a group of people acts in a hostile way towards another person or group of people because of their identity, be it race, religion, the language someone speaks, or some other differing attribute. In our Torah, we read about how Pharaoh was afraid of the Hebrews and used that as justification to enslave them. We read about Haman who was insulted by Mordechai because he refused to bow down to him and used that as justification to attempt genocide. There are smaller acts of aggression though, including insults, vandalism, or bullying. Our tradition is very clear though; such things are completely forbidden. This time, the act was antisemitic and against Jews, next time it might be some other target. In all cases, it is an act of hostility towards people who are different. As Jews, we have a responsibility to do what we can to stand up to prejudices and hatreds. Rather than hate those who are different, we are commanded to "Love the stranger, love people who are different from you, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." Love of course isn't just a warm and fuzzy feeling, it is a prescription for how we are to behave or not behave. May we always work to move closer towards our ideals, and may our community be a welcoming, loving place for all its residents.

Rabbi Jason Holtz

News from TKC President Alan Abrams

KEHILLAH STRONG

When I was president of TKC in the early 1980s, we did not have our own building. We met in banks, schools, clubhouses, hotels and churches. We had to create our spiritual community each week, without our own building. But it didn't matter what physical place we were in because we had each other. It was our members joining together each week that created our kehillah.

I believe the most important dynamics of our kehillah are very much the same today as they were then. I see the same spirit of community and fellowship, clearly demonstrating how wonderful and supportive our kehillah still is today!

I think most of us have chosen to be members of the TKC because we believe in supporting Jewish institutions and we care about the future of Judaism in our community. We are members because we want to be part of a place that is welcoming, a place where we can build intimate relationships, a place where we are supportive of each other, a place that addresses profound spiritual yearnings, and a place where we can connect with our Jewish tradition. We are looking for a place to call home, a kehillah.

When we joined TKC, we all became part of something much larger than ourselves. It certainly has been that way for me and for my family.

I am so proud that what we envisioned all those years ago is what TKC is today – vibrant, inclusive and supportive of each other, and welcoming all to join us, no matter their income, their sexual preference, their race, or the religion of their spouse!

As we begin our yearlong celebration of the 40th anniversary of our founding, and as we continue to persevere and prosper through these unprecedented and challenging times, I'm challenging each one of you to join with me in every way you can, to contribute your time, your energy, your money, your prayers, your emotional support and your love.

I am asking each of you once again to please support this year's High Holy Day Appeal, as we are relying on your continuing strong and loyal generosity.

Now, more than ever, your gift to TKC is invaluable. And just like it was when we began, our kehillah today needs each of us to contribute. In the coming year we will face new challenges and new opportunities that are going to require new ideas, new solutions and new approaches. That means we will need more of you to increase your commitment to our kehillah!

In our very first year, I promised myself to strive to give more each year to our temple. I am proud to say that I have been able to keep that commitment – for almost 40 years! Now I'd love for each one of you to make a similar commitment.

We need every one of you to please give what you can to help us guarantee that we will enjoy a bright future together, led by Rabbi Holtz. We need your support to help us strengthen our longer-term financial posture, to secure our future and make it easier in the next few years as we grow and achieve great things together.

So please give as generously as you can. Each of your contributions is needed and greatly appreciated, no matter the amount. I hope we can have 100% participation in this year's High Holy Day Appeal.

Of course, we remain committed to welcoming everyone into our kehillah, regardless of their ability to pay, and to serving all of our members regardless of their financial standing. We need and want all of you in our TKC family, and the thing that will allow us to continue to accommodate those in need is the added generosity of those who can help. So that is why I am turning to you, to ask you, if you can, to help ensure that Temple Kehillat Chaim remains a home for all.

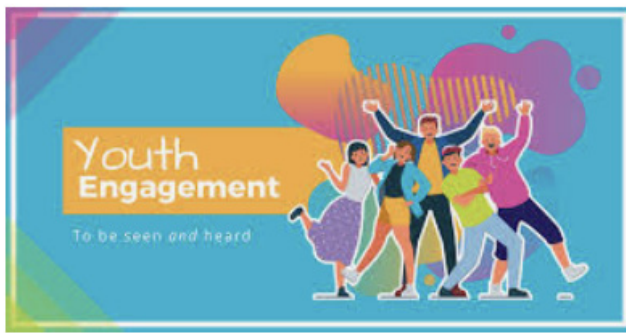

Here are several ways you can support this year's Appeal:

- Mail your check payable to Temple Kehillat Chaim.
- Go to <https://kehillatchaim.org/make-a-payment> and make an online gift to the General Donation Fund.
- Find out if your company has a program to match your charitable donation.

Margaret and I plan to increase our financial commitment to TKC this year once again as much as we can. I urge you to please join us!

With your help, the next few years can be one of the greatest eras in the history of our temple, and I am really looking forward to the upcoming yearlong celebration of our 40th anniversary!

Alan Abrams

Religious School Updates

This past weekend, Religious School welcomed 4th grade families for their family education day where they built salt dough maps of Israel with support from TKC's Shinshin, Alma Shoshani. A shinshin is an Israeli student who is taking a gap year to come to the United States to teach and engage with American Jewish youth to share Israeli culture and life.

The families had a great time this week and learned about Israeli geography and topography in a fun and engaging way. Thank you to teacher Carey Grucza and madricha Eva Waller for leading this great activity.

Following school, we had our annual Sukkot picnic starting with a short service by Caroline Figiel and Rabbi Holtz. We got to shake the lulav and etrog and learn about these important symbols and their meaning. Families gathered under and around the sukkah for lunch and the children got to do some great activities that fit with the holiday.

It's been a great month of religious school and I can't wait for October when we kick off Chai 5 with our new leader, Ezra Flom. Originally from Southern California, Ezra discovered his American Jerusalem in Atlanta a short five years ago. For over 10 years Ezra has crafted experiences for learners both young and old that ignite an excitement for life, Judaism, and Israel. During that time, he traveled around the world both teaching and learning about Judaism. Ezra earned a master's degree in Education at American Jewish University, a California Teaching Credential from Hebrew Union College, as well as a BA in Rabbinic Literature, and a BA in Spanish Culture and Literature. More importantly than his formal education, Ezra is proud to be an Eagle Scout, and has been awarded the President's Volunteer Service Award for his work with college students in New Orleans and Galveston. Besides joining the TKC staff this year, Ezra is also the father of a 10 month old little girl!

Stay safe and well!
